There is a popular opinion that the exploration of Americas made a great contribution towards making English the most spoken language in the world. 24 The logic between this point of view is crystal clear: immigrants from European countries who maybe fled from there for some reason of just wanted to find a better life needed to learn a common language to speak to the people who had already been living in European settlements. And this language was of course English as many of the first settlements were founded by the English. While I totally agree with the argument, I suppose there is more to why English is world wide spoken. 85 In the past the British Empire had a lot of colonies and at its peak was one of the largest countries in the world by territory. One of the colonies was, for example India. So people living in these colonies were to speak English, it was actually an official language. Moreover, many trade routes were set between colonies and England. To profit from these routes, people learnt English and spoke it on an every day basis. 60	Количество слов: 185
