The given article portrays one of the component of the long-awaited future: electric cars and whether or not are they going to take over usual cars. This article mentions a lot of problems with producing electric vehicles, and one of them is huge resource gap between rich countries and poor countries. It states, that because of lack of some chemical elements and electricity poorer countries are going to be left behind. On the other hand isn't this the way any technology works? It costs a lot of money and other resources at the beginning of its existence, and then it becomes cheaper and more approachable. The other problem of electric cars is the lack of battery technology. The batteries, that we have today, are easily maintained, but even with all of the difficulties are not enough to be a sustainable option for routine use. Frankly, it doesn't sound as a valid reason to give up on electric cars. Of course, it's a challenge, but where would humanity be, if we had never faced any challenges? The article states that electric car revolution most likely won't be completed in my opinion, we are only to see where life take us.	Количество слов: 198
