URBANIZATION OR RURALITY "Urban Future" explores the themes of urbanization, garden cities and in which ways both of these ideas are sustainable. Some people, including renowned scholars, argue that big cities are an integral part of any country's economy. Indeed, metropolises allow for a faster exchange of information, thus making business opportunities endless. But sustaining such fast-growing population proved to be a challenge, as many occupants of such cities lack safe drinking water and other important amenities. But the upside of a densly packed town is that their environmental damage is concentrated in one spot. Also, cities proved to be lower-maintenance overall. Garden cities were meant to be a response to the overcrowded, poor industrial cities. The small, self-sustainable community in a countryside, where everything is 15 minutes away, was and still is a polar opposite of modern capitals. While the idea might seem perfect, the real-life examples never truly reached self-sustainability and locals, in their majority, were commuters. In my opinion, the middle ground can be reached by making urban cities more walk walkable and integrating greenery into architecture. This way Country sides should be made more modern, so locals won't be forced to commute.	Количество слов: 191
