The article "Urban Future" features different ways of taking advantage of urbanization and how to make urbanization harmless. The main problem of the article is how the population rises and how it may be managed and governed. The article also mentions how garden metropolises may be advantageous for the environment. According to the article, cities may be surrounded by a greenbelt which is an area around the city supposed to prevent ^{its} spread of the city. Also the article mentions the idea of building garden cities. These are intended to be small and spacious with everything necessary accessible on foot. However, it's worth mentioning that the text does state that urbanisation is important as it ^{assists} lifts countries out of poverty. The article is mostly based on Ebenezer Howard's book setting out his personal point of view ^{opinion} on how cities are ^{should} supposed to be. Unexpectedly, the book turned out to have led ^{been} the foundation ^{essential} of urban planning. It was in fact his idea to start building garden cities, the first of which was Letchworth. Thus the article discusses urbanization in various ways, considers ways to of changing current situations and mentions urbanisation's advantages.	Количество слов: 196
