|---|--------------------------------|-------------------|
| Answer The article "What is art history and where is it going?" is about sense of art history as discipline. The author explains us that nowadays art historians are doubting what is meant by art and what history should be studied. He tells us about changes in their work through time and changes in definitions of art. The main problem of this article is how to distinguish an artifact from art. The author in the text suggests that the main difference is that artifacts don't captivate viewers. They are, undoubtedly, interesting, but only art can move person's mind. He also thinks that nowadays art is widely defined as a kind of artifact, because it's something made by a human. In my opinion, the author of this article isn't quite right. There are many artifacts in the world which can surely captivate one's view. I think that the main difference between these two concepts is that art is something made with feelings and artifact is something archeological that shows, for example, ancient people's life. | Количество слов: 176 | |
