

App for individual selection of a psychologist iPsy

We all face difficult life situations. Death of a loved one, failure at work, her absence, some kind of internal conflicts with oneself, etc. It often happens that it is quite difficult to cope with this state of affairs on your own, and sometimes even impossible. And the psychologist helps us just to understand ourselves, to survive the "dark stripes". But how to find the right psychologist for you, because there are so many of them?

One of these tools can be an application for the individual selection of a psychologist. How did we find a psychologist before? Through acquaintances in newspapers, on the Internet. But all of these methods had one common drawback. This choice was very general, not individual. And the only way to find out who this psychologist was was to go to him for a consultation.

iPsy takes the ability to find a psychologist to the next level. The application database contains data on thousands of psychologists. From many cities in Russia.

How it works? Let's imagine that you find it difficult to adapt to a new team, you often quarrel with relatives or your partner, it is difficult for you to manage your emotions, and you suffer from sudden mood swings. Are you downloading the iPsy app? Indicate your city, the format of consultations (face-to-face or online) and general characteristics describing your problems, at the next step you will be asked a number of clarifying questions to improve the quality of the selection of a psychologist. After these operations, you will see a list of psychologists specializing in your specific problems. You can also see their photos, get acquainted with information about their education, work experience and feedback on their work.

Thus, thanks to the iPsy application, you will be able to find a psychologist much easier, more conveniently and faster, and, therefore, faster to bounce back and live a full life.
