

Our quest is designed to dive into the battles of the great Patriotic War with the help of virtual glasses that will help you to immerse yourself in the events of that time with more reliability, commemorate the Brest fortress, which fought with the enemy for more than two months to the last soldier, and if someone was captured, it was only because they were unconscious, and the front went hundreds of kilometers inland, and people fought to the last drop of blood.

Virtual glasses are connected wirelessly to other players' glasses. Physics of weapons, soldiers, tanks, everything in this game behaves as if it is reality. So, participants can choose their role in the game from a nurse to a scout and go all the way of the particular character in this difficult time.

We think that the government should make the application of this product on the territory of Russia obligatory, because with this quest, people can study the Great Patriotic War with a greater historical accuracy and experience the emotions of that time.

The head of state Vladimir Putin said at the meeting with scientists and history teachers, "it is extremely sad and very disturbing. If today's young people do not know who to look up to, do not see heroes, are not even aware of the fact that the Second world war ever occurred." Since technology is now moving forward, the current generation will be more interested than ever to plunge into the world of virtual reality and go deep down into the difficult times of the war. Our past serves the Foundation of our present and future.
